ANNOUNCEMENTS

CPSC Product Warnings

This month, the CPSC has issued a series of product warnings that include small powerful magnets, crib mattresses, and lithium-ion replacement battery packs.

The “Pedetid 216-Piece 5mm Magic Magnet Ball Sets,” sold exclusively on Walmart.com, do not comply with the requirements of the mandatory federal toy regulation and pose a risk of serious injury or death if ingested by children. When two or more small, powerful magnets are swallowed, surgery is often needed to remove them and fix the damage.

The CPSC also warns consumers to immediately stop using “Hygge Hush Flat Classic Logo Style play yard mattresses” because they violate the federal safety regulations for crib mattresses, posing a suffocation hazard to infants.

The “ZAUTNKN.INC lithium-ion replacement battery packs” for Dyson Vacuums sold Amazon.com have not had their performance and safety verified to meet national safety standards. There have been three reports of fires associated with the battery packs.

TOP RECALLS

January 25, 2024 CPSC; Yaomiao Children’s Rhinestone Silver Tiaras, sold exclusively on Amazon, have been recalled because the rhinestones contain levels of lead that exceed the federal lead content ban, posing a risk of adverse health effects to young children if ingested. Units: About 12,440.

January 24, 2024 CPSC; Haleon recalled eight lots of its Robitussin Honey CF Max Day Adult and Nighttime Adult cough syrups due to microbial contamination, posing a risk of severe or life-threatening adverse events or infection to immunocompromised consumers.
